

The Reinwardt Academy offers an 18-month Master's Degree Programme in Museology (Museum Studies). All lectures take place exclusively in English.

A high academic level combined with practical skills characterises the Master's Degree Programme. It is based on the theoretical and practical experience of students, lecturers and museum staff. The academic development of museology is closely connected with the actual development in the museum field. The Reinwardt Master's degree programme in Museology is the first international course to be validated by the British Cultural National Training Organisation (CHNTO) in 1998. It was recognised by the University of Newcastle-upon-Tyne. Since 2004 Reinwardt's Master's Degree Programme is listed in the Central Register for Degree Courses in Higher Education (CROHO) and graduates will be granted the title M.Museology (Master of Museology).

The aim of the Master's Degree Programme is to provide participants with an academic attitude towards museology and to prepare them for professional careers and leading positions in the world of museums.

The programme takes eighteen months to complete and has a work load of 2500 hours (90 ECTS). In the first year six modules are offered, each lasting for five weeks. On completion of the six modules students are required to complete a ten week internship (April - June) in a museum of their choice, either in their country of origin or The Netherlands.

Classes are offered three half days a week. Besides the lectures excursions are part of the programme. The Master's research project and its thesis are estimated to take six months and may either be carried out in the Netherlands or abroad.

Imagine Identity and Culture

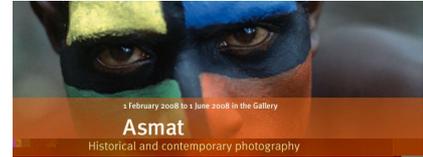

Imagine Identity and Culture, a centre for the visual representation of migration and cultures.

Imagine Identity and Culture is the first cultural organization in the Netherlands to highlight the culture and identity of migrants as seen from their own perspective. Imagine IC invites people to describe their history and culture by means of various activities. It then uses these stories to create exhibitions, audio-visual programs and digital productions for both newcomers and residents.

Tropenmuseum

In the Tropenmuseum you can take a trip through the world and through time. Thousands of stories, splendid works of art and amazing objects bring a wide variety of cultures to life. The Tropenmuseum is one of Europe's leading ethnographic museums, renowned for its collection. The permanent and temporary exhibitions display (art) objects, photographs, music and film from non-western cultures. The beautiful and historic building in which the Tropenmuseum is housed provides space for eight permanent exhibitions and an ongoing series of temporary exhibitions, including both modern and traditional visual arts and photographic work. An audiotour guides you on your journey around the world. Audiotours are available free of charge in four languages: Dutch, English, French and German. Enjoy your visit!

Anne Frank House

The former hiding place, where Anne Frank wrote her diary, is now a well-known museum. The museum tells the history of the eight people in hiding and those who helped them during the war. Anne Frank's diary is among the original objects on display. Exhibitions

In addition to the historic rooms, where the history of Anne Frank is central, there are other exhibitions in the museum. An exhibition with a current theme is the interactive exhibition 'Free2choose'.

History teaches us that freedom and democracy are inseparable. Citizens of every democratic society are guaranteed a number of fundamental rights under the law. These include, for instance: freedom of speech, religious freedom and the right to privacy.

Free2choose

Yet, is there a limit to these basic human rights? What happens when fundamental rights conflict with each other? Or if the security of a democratic society is threatened? Free2choose presents current examples, from around the world, of fundamental rights that clash with safeguarding democratic rule of law. This exhibition explores the present-day boundaries of freedom.

You will find that in Haarlem's historic city centre all of the places of interest are within walking distance. And what could be more pleasant than strolling along while enjoying everything Haarlem has to offer? Or taking a break in one of the many cosy cafes. And if you are after good food, the choice is virtually unlimited. Just look around and every-where you will see good restaurants and intimate eateries. Haarlem even has a culinary walking route for the real gourmets! In every respect, Haarlem is indeed a delightful city.

You are bound to notice something else as well, when walking through Haarlem's city centre: the great variety of shops. It should not surprise you, therefore, to learn that Haarlem has been officially designated best shopping city in Holland. The city owes this title, among other things, to the wide range of specialised stores and exclusive shops. And - not to be overlooked - the enjoyable market, every Monday and Saturday, in the location where it has been held for centuries: the Grote Markt. The city centre is virtually car-free, so you can do your shopping in peace and quiet. You can park your car conveniently in one of the covered car parks in the centre. The Grote Markt is just a 10 minute walk from the railway station.

Haarlem, city of flowers

From whichever direction you enter Haarlem, the city welcomes you with beautiful flower arrangements on street corners, colourful parks and squares. In early spring the bulb fields stretching out for miles to the south-west of the city show off their unique colourful splendour. A fantastic experience which you will not want to miss. And that also goes for the Flower Corso, the annual flower-display-on-wheels, with its magnificent floats. But perhaps you would rather get away from it all in the "Haarlemmerhout", the oldest urban woodland area in Holland. In short: Haarlem is Holland's Flower City par excellence.

ABC Architectuurcentrum Haarlem

Permanente educatieve multimediapresentatie

Met ingang van 1 januari 2007 sluit de EXPO Haarlem in Uitvoering definitief haar deuren in de Brinkmannpassage aan de Grote Markt. Belanghebbenden kunnen in het vervolg voor informatie over de stedelijke ontwikkeling van Haarlem en de grote (bouw)projecten naar het ABC Architectuurcentrum. Wij hopen zo snel mogelijk informatie over nieuwbouwprojecten in het ABC te kunnen presenteren. Wij houden u op de hoogte.

De EXPO werd goed bezocht en voorzag duidelijk in een informatiebehoefte. Maar het aanbod had een zekere overlap met de activiteiten van het ABC. Daarom heeft het college van B&W, in het kader van de bezuinigingsmaatregelen, besloten om de EXPO te sluiten. Daarop volgend is het bestuur van het ABC benaderd met de vraag om de informatieverstrekking over grote projecten over te nemen. Het ABC heeft na goed overleg aangegeven deze taak graag op zich te nemen. Na een nog in te plannen verbouwing zal uiteindelijk de belangrijkste informatie uit de EXPO in het ABC te zien zijn.

Teylers Museum

Behind the heavy monumental door of Teylers Museum, a whole world of the past awaits you: the world of the eighteenth century, the Enlightenment, when the newest scientific experiments were made, when newly excavated fossils were put on show, when people marvelled at drawings and accounts of recent journeys of discovery. To each inquiring person, seeing and learning were essential – as they still are today.

The oldest museum in the Netherlands was founded in the eighteenth century and still exudes the atmosphere of that time. Built in 1784 thanks to the legacy of Pieter Teyler, a wealthy banker and merchant, it has hardly changed in all those years. As a visitor, you wander past the various items shown in the attractive historical display cases, which are lit only by daylight. It is as if you were leafing through an encyclopaedia, allowing each object to tell its own story – each fossil, mineral or scientific instrument; each coin, medal, book, print, painting or drawing. Some are famous, some are complex; all are fascinating. You can hear the stories of these exhibits on the free audio-tour, or learn more about them in our Multimedia Room. Most objects are shown in the very same display case in which they were placed years ago by people whose view of the world was very different. All evoking the sensation that, just for a moment, time has stood still...
